CARRYING ON

The U.F.A. does not often change its leader. Which testifies alike to the steadfastness of the members to old associations, and to the satisfactory leadership it has been their good fortune to receive.

The delegates to the annual convention this week kept the tradition by re-electing Mr. Robert Gardner to the presidency. This is the eighth consecutive year in which he has held this honor. His predecessor, Dr. L. C. Wood, held the position so long it seemed to have become his personal property, and relinquished it of his own accord.

To follow and highly esteemed a veteran accepted and not be an easy task. Mr. Gardner has done so, and deserves congratulations both for having shown the necessary qualifications and for having won recognition for them. The members of the organization are equally to be commended for giving no occasion to change their chieftain.

A FRIEND AT COURT

Hon. Duncan Marshall and Hon. Norman Lamb, two of Canada's new senators, appointed to fill two of the three vacancies, have been admitted to the Ontario bar.

Mr. Marshall's appointment has been mooted for some time, that of Mr. Lamb had not been publicly anticipated.

Party service is a definite qualification for appointment to the Senate, it is an essential qualification except when a government has secured large enough majority in the upper house that it can afford to be generous.

The present Government has been happy positively to consent for enactment of its legislation upon the forbearance of a hostile majority in that chamber. In such circumstances appointments invariably go to political supporters of the government in power. On that ground both new members are unquestionably qualified.

While Mr. Lambert is little known in the west, Mr. Marshall is well known and is known to have ability and experience which should make him a useful senator. And, having spent many years in Alberta, it may be assumed that province and the west generally will find him a warm friend and consistent champion, in a body where western needs, interests and opinions are now so sympathetically viewed at present.

DISPLAY CARDS MIGHT HELP

Major Fry is appealing to the citizens to respect the city's early closing bylaw, by not asking waiters to call them after 9 p.m. and after hours on Sun. This being his case, it is no longer "spilling the beans" to record that Edmonton's early closing bylaw has been honored in the breach more often than not.

And His Worship is addressing himself to the right parties. It is the customer, rather than the small merchant, who is to blame for the general tick of defiance of the provost bylaw.

The waiters who run restaurants can't afford to offend customers, and it is disclosing no secret to say many of them would have to do just that if they did not sell after hours and on Sunday after the bylaw.

But maybe the customer sins in ignorance on a good many occasions. To most people there is a rather hazy idea of what constitutes a "closed hour" and what the one or two hands both, what more natural than to assume that a drop, or of an evening for something the merchant is allowed to sell at that time should be ask and for something else he may not know to lie beyond the bylaw.

It would help to better observance of the bylaw if the things legally saleable in "closed hours" were tabulated, and display cards hung prominently in the windows for the information of the public. The customer would then know what he was legally entitled to ask for. And the merchant would have present and visible evidence that the law compelled him to refuse to sell commodities not listed as permissible.

CHECKING UP

The relief committee of the Calgary city council has been making some inquiries into the question of who gets relief and why, with results which are not yet available. After investigating along the same lines in other cities, the immediate result one man, who was to have received a job, was struck off relief.

The man in question, the committee seemed to be under the impression that it did not find any relief man who could say when or to whom they had applied for employment, and then examined included one official of an unemployed association. The committee, however, that some single men and women who had been relieved from the provost had got married in order that they might get on the city list, the city allowing being more liberal.

During the investigation, the committee brought sweeping allegations that relief has degenerated into a racket, and should be immediately stopped. That, perhaps, is one reason why city councils hate to stage investigations into the kind of tales of those on the relief rolls. Most of these need relief and cannot get along without it, but where

Modern Cinderellas Possess New Fairy Godfather

TRADE UNION FOR SERVANTS CONTEMPLATED

British Trades Union Congress Plans To Organize Domestic Servants

By EDWIN R. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Writer

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The modern Cinderella, who has come under the general classification of domestic servant, have found a new fairy.

With abandonment of a plan to introduce a charter for maid in which the term "servant" was laid down in clear language, Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the T.U.C., has undertaken to canvass the possibilities of organizing a trade union for domestics.

OFFICIALLY TACKLED

Although individual trade unions have from time to time attempted to organize sections of the country, it is the first time the T.U.C. as a body has officially tackled the problem.

The spade work is being concerned with the London area which embraces the bulk of the domestic servant population. Names are being taken of several thousand domestics who have expressed an interest in the view that the feasibility of a union will be studied as a further action.

BIT-DOOR STEPPES

Problems of regulating wages and working hours for this class of labor are also envisaged and their ultimate solution will be left to some misgiving. The question has been raised as to those who have been thought to the problems of the domestic servants. Are they the kitchen girls or the maid who occupies the stern-faced young women, their arms bound in the formidable immobility of the all-down striking? It is asked.

Japanese are growing taller. The average height of the men has increased one inch in 20 years, and that of women two inches.

Dry Skin Is Problem During Winter Time

By ALICIA HART

During winter months, dry skin often is problem skin. Here's how various remedies have solved their difficulties.

"My complexion is very dry, so during the winter months I cleanse and during the day, I cleanse my face and throat with cream instead of water. I am a young and beautiful singer. The film of cream which remains after I have washed my face is invisible, of course, but it makes business of applying rouge much simpler. I have a family motto, 'Youthful look'."

A star whose hands have a tendency to become dry and cracked less properly oiled and creamed has trained herself to use hand lotion more often than ever. After each washing she massaged in carefully. She carries a small bottle of cream in her purse and larger ones in dresser rooms at the theatre, in bath and kitchenette at home.

Once a week, the actress dips hands and wrists in warm olive oil, then washes them with lotion gloves while she sleeps.

Another actress always spends her summer vacation at a little farmhouse in the country. There she grows her dry nails a complete cure during the month she is there. She uses cuticle cream every night and she bathes in warm water but she doesn't touch her nails with a file or emery board, doesn't have manicures, professional or otherwise.

She carefully cuts nails with a sharp scissor, gives them a light buffing instead of a coat of liquid polish. By the end of the month, cuticles have disappeared, and her nails no longer have a tendency to chip and peel.

Pork Is Splendid As Body's Winter Fuel

By MRS. GAVIN MADDOX

Though pork returns to lower price ranges, it is high in those little calories which furnishes body heat. Pork is a two-fold welcome now.

The more fatty forms of pork are roast, fresh ham and sausage. Smoked ham and bacon, having been specially treated, are a little more expensive, but a great deal fresher.

The following recipe will prove to you that the little pig has many different moods.

CROWN ROAST OF PORK WITH GLAZED APPLES

5 lbs. pounds of loin of pork, 1/4 pound ground pork trimmings, 6 slices of bacon, 1/2 cup onions, 1 onion, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 6 small apples, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup cranberry juice, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 cup water.

Leave the butcher make a crown roast out of the 6 pound loin. Take chops off, mix with soft bread crumbs, add bacon and onion which has been sautéed in butter. Fill cavity in center of roast with this mixture. Roast for 4 hours in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) basting frequently. Peel and core apples, add to bacon, sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup cranberry juice, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup water.

Pearl onions are added to the crown roast, and the bacon is wrapped and browned thoroughly on both sides. Lay chops in a casserole dish, add bacon, onions, apples, brown sugar, 1/2 cup water and a dash of pepper. Pour juice over apples. Cover and bake for 1 1/2 hours (325 degrees F.) for about one hour and one-half hours. Basic recipe.

EDMONTON BULLETIN—ALBERTA'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER—SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1938

Your Children

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Dear me, dear me," says the nice old lady, "can't somebody stop them?" Those little boys are killing us all, she sighs.

She explained to bystanders that they were walking along as peacefully as any two boys could walk when all at once they laid down the books and went at each other like small tigers. A small group of tired gentlemen, who had been waiting outside the drug store, stepped over immediately to the curb and began getting the two boys up, one at a time, now rolling in the gutter.

"Dear lady, lady, it's only in fun," drawled out one. "They aren't hurting anything." But the other boys were not so sure. They were the right of Tommy sitting on Jerry's stomach and strangling him at the same time. "It's only fun," said the boy, "but it's a great help to mother, but also establishes health and thrift and industry and dependability that will be their best assets as long as they live."

WHAT ARE PARENTS TO DO?

Well, suppose we were witnessing some such primal urge in two boys. What would we do about it? Especially if one of the boys was our son? "I would have to put it to him," said the mother, "that it is wicked, and wrong and a—expensive."

Another mother shudders over the thought. Fathers are more likely to say, "Well, who won't be a great help to mother, but also establishes health and thrift and industry and dependability that will be their best assets as long as they live."

There are two ways of meeting this. One is the stern and punitive. The other is that old dear alibi of clearing him by killing him. He would be told to keep his hands off his brother, but the boy, the sight of each other, and therefore think it behoves them to prove the difference.

Mark the difference, good mother, and explain to your son why it is that he must not do this. He doesn't mind a little of the one, but that you won't stand for the other, that you won't stand for the aggressor, and picks a fight with another boy just to get even. Show him that it is the victim of his boy's naughtiness and not the aggressor who is to blame. Blowing his blow, it is a shame for him. He should be told to keep his hands off his brother, but the boy, the sight of each other, and therefore think it behoves them to prove the difference.

Fighting is strong in some boys' nature. For others it has no interest. For others it is a natural instinct to find a child who does not bear grudges, and to keep him still and keep his feet stirred up by his constant challenges. It won't hurt him to let him know that it is a practice, if they are so inclined. After a while he would be told to keep his hands off his brother, but the boy, the sight of each other, and therefore think it behoves them to prove the difference.

But explain to him the brute strength and malice. Suggest other methods of attaining peace. Show him how to make a friend and how to be a friend. Show him how to love his child, get him day after day, in pieces, glancing over his shoulder, master what father wants.

United Church of England Is Envisaged

M'FARLAND IS CONFIDENT OF FARMER BODY

Aims and Objects Said Similar To Those Of Unity Movement

CALGARY, Jan. 22.—Commenting on the decision of the United Farmers of Alberta to remain in the United Farmers of Canada field, with the C.C.F., John D. McFarland, chairman of the United Farmers Alberta Unity Council, said Friday:

"There has not been made public sufficient details regarding the U.F.A. decision to enable anyone to properly estimate its effect. However, I have a great confidence in our farmers and I have no doubt that the U.F.A. will be found to be a sound step toward realization of the unity movement in this province. I am sure our aims and objects are similar."

E. L. Gray, leader of the Alberta Unity movement, commented:

"The U.F.A. decision corroborates the condition we anticipated—namely, that the U.F.A. movement in which we stated that certain farmers had the right to retain their identity and that the hope was in re-operation among them."

"We have felt that fairly close co-operation of police can be obtained among the various groups."

FOOD SHORTAGE FOR INDIANS IS NOT REPORTED

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—No reports have come to the Indian Affairs Department here of distress among Indians in the same degree as in the North West Territories as stated in an Edmonton despatch.

Reports received from Fort Simpson were that an Indian, Julian Mousse, had died from starvation and that his wife and child had been sent to the Indian Affairs department for an extension of the open season.

No report had been received from the Indian agent at Fort Simpson, although a despatch from Edmonton had been sent to the Indian Affairs department for an extension of the open season.

Helen F. Barbour Is Named Organist McDougall Church

Talented Musician Achieves Ambition to Play "King Of Instruments"; Has Enviable Record In Various Branches Of Art

Detended to realize a long-life ambition of mastering the many intricacies of the pipe-organ, Miss Helen F. Barbour, of this city, already highly accomplished in other branches of music, commenced study of this instrument a year ago and now has been appointed organist of McDougall United church, it was announced on Saturday. In the short space of one year, Miss Barbour progressed from a novice at the instrument, to being the performing artist in the organ of the largest church here.

Miss Barbour, who is a piano player of great promise, has already won an enviable record in various branches of music, including vocal, vocal and teacher.

For six years she has been a valuable member of the music colony and each year has seen her stature increase and her influence correspondingly.

Born In Ontario

Miss Barbour was born at Crosshill, Ont., the daughter of the late George Barbour, a prominent member of Wesley United church, and Mrs. Barbour. Receiving her early musical training at the Brampton schools, she embarked upon musical studies which were carried out at Bradford and Guelph.

With her parents, Miss Barbour moved to Guelph, Ont., in 1919, and there commenced teaching the piano at Lacombe and was appointed organist of St. Andrew's Anglican church.

In July of 1922 she moved to this city and commenced teaching the piano at Lacombe and was appointed organist of St. Andrew's Anglican church.

Two years ago she was appointed organist to the organ of the MacPherson church, St. J. H. Jones, conductor and who was her vocal teacher.

Miss Barbour has won in charge of organ classes at McKay Avenue school.

WON PRIZES

At the provincial musical festival held at Guelph in 1927, she won a competition and in 1928 won the same event in the Edmonton and in 1929 in the same competition at the Royal Schools of Music.

REUNION IS PLANNED BY CONFERENCE

Anglicans and Non-Conformists May Enter Protestant Fusion

LONDON, Jan. 22.—A united church of England and non-conformists, including Methodists, is envisaged in a draft plan made public Friday night.

The reunion plan was drawn up by a joint committee of the Church of England and the Federal Council of the Methodist, Congregational, Free Church, representing Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists and others.

RESOLUTIONS PILED

The committee recommended the plan to the attention of churchmen throughout the country. The plan was passed Thursday and Friday by the Conference of Canterbury and by the General Council.

KENT CONTROVERSY IS SUSPENDED

The church resulting from the single union of the two denominations was before the non-conforming denominations broke away from it in 1845.

The draft plan would have freed the Church of England from the control of the non-conforming denominations.

EDMONTON CHURCHEN SECTS THEIR VIEWS

Edmonton churchmen expressed their opinion that the move was not in the best interest of the church.

REV. K. MCNEIL, EDMONTON UNITED CHURCH

As far as the churchmen for united church are concerned, it is the only right thing. After a great deal of thought, the churchmen have decided to take a stand for a united church.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION

Reports of an unusually successful meeting of First Presbyterian church were made in the lecture hall of the church on Jan. 19, 1938, at 8 p.m. with S. H. McNeil, K. C. chairman, and A. Fraser Duncan, chairman of the vestry. The meeting was well attended.

The treasury report was filed by H. Ward, and it was commendable.

Mrs. R. G. Moore, who had been a member of the vestry for 11 years, had been raised during the year.

Edna Moore and Wallace J. Clark were elected to the vestry.

Reports of the Sunday school indicated a steady advance in all departments.

Reports were received from the girls' club, the Happy Hunting Ground, the choir, the Mission Board, the Mision Board, the leader of the choir, the organist, and the organist.

Reports of the work of the pastor, Dr. J. A. Saunders, and his wife, Mrs. J. A. Saunders, were received.

The women's auxiliary, the Sunday school, the choir, the organist, and the organist.

The boys' auxiliary, the choir, the organist, and the organist.

The choir, the organist, and the organist.

The organist, the organist, and the organist.

Radio License Increased To Cover Expansion Cost

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Radio license fees will be increased to cover the cost of expansion of the Canadian Broadcast Commission, being made by Transport Minister M. Howe.

The new regulations also provide for a separate license to be issued to the present arrangement of a house or office for radio, being cancelled.

Royal Alex. Hospital Has Fine Maternity Record

City Woman Is Able To Walk Again After 46 Years As Cripple

The age of miracles may be past, but not for Mrs. George Rogier of 10707 98th street, for, after spending 46 years of her life as a cripple, she is now able to walk around just like everybody else.

Mrs. Rogier, who had been crippled as a result of an infected foot, was operated on by a doctor to be operated on again. For two weeks she had been walking on her toe, which necessitated her wearing an arched shoe, with a six-inch built-up heel.

PAINFUL CONDITION

The cords and tendons and nerves had been shortened until it was extremely painful for her to walk at all. She was to have corrective surgery at least two months following the operation, but now, within a few weeks of entering the hospital on November 25, she is able and happy.

"Since I have been a little girl in the St. Albert convent where I hurt my foot, I have never been able to walk again. I have not been happy," Mrs. Rogier told a Bulletin reporter. "I am now happy again with a delightful French accent."

"For years I have not been like other people, and I have known a minute when I was out of pain that this is a miracle that is the only thing I can call."

BECOMING PARALYZED

"The doctor said if I had left it for a year or two longer I would have been too hope at all for my leg because it was becoming paralyzed. I had lost all hope and all hope of ever being able to walk well again, but now I feel pain again."

Mrs. Rogier has been taken care of for years by her two daughters, who have been unable to care for her. "But I am able to take care of them now," Mrs. Rogier said as she left her new outlook on life.

Mrs. Rogier is the wife of George Rogier, a shoemaker, of 10675 98th street.

TWO MEN ARE HELD RESULT SAFE ROBBERY

Thomas Clayton and Albert Hillier Suspected Of Stealing Safe

Two men, identified as members of Thomas Clayton and Albert Hillier are being held in Royal Canadian Mounted Police cells here in connection with the theft of a safe from the Midland Palace Garage, 1000 10th street, Vegreville, Thursday night. Police arrested the two men Friday night and charged them with the safe, the safe, believed to be the one stolen from Inland, near Vegreville, and which was recovered in the bush near the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Park in this city.

Arrested: Detained at Franklin Inn and Lake Louise by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police late Friday evening, they were captured in a brief chase through the bush.

HIDING IN BUSH

Following the information given to the police, early Friday evening that some men in a car had been seen hiding in the bush near the safe, the police communicated with Russell and the two officers went to the place.

When they arrived, they found a safe, which answered the description of the one stolen from the safe in the garage elevator.

MEN CAPTURED

Concealing themselves near and after two hours of vigilance, he and two members of the gang, who had been tracking the two to the point where the safe was concealed, had been captured in the safe, and the two officers rushed them. The strangers turned and attempted to run away but were captured after a brief chase.

Safe taken: The safe was taken to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police barracks for identification.

TWO CHILDREN HURT AS SLED CRASHES TRUCK

Two city children, a boy, 15, and a girl, 12, were injured and two others were slightly injured when a sled, pulled, coasting down Deer's Hill, the east approach to the Dawson bridge, Friday afternoon, crashed into a truck. The boy, Ferdinand Dvorsky, of Clover Bar, was taken to the hospital in 10th Street, where he was in charge of 10th Street, where he was in charge of the sled, which had been on the ice at the crest of the hill on which the four youngsters were riding. The girl, Yolanda Coulombe, 1830 106th avenue, was cut on the lip and required three stitches. She had a small gash on the forehead and a bruise on the right eye.

According to police, Dvorsky was within 400 yards of the top of the hill when he saw the sled coming down the hill. He turned out of the road, he pulled his truck over to the side of the road and stepped into the front left wheel of the truck. The other three children were taken to the hospital.

Police said that they have been investigating the practice of sledding on the hill, where there is motor traffic, and that less than two weeks ago four juveniles were warned by the police authorities for disobeying the warning.

The Forgotten Man

By ELY CULBERTSON

Most of us at some time or other have felt the deep desire to sleep with an ace." It is one of the most poignant experiences in life, especially for a large and appreciative group of habitués around the table.

Never let us say, there are times when the best conceivable defense is to sacrifice an ace. And, let us not forget that the best defense of the sacrificing done without rhyme or reason.

A HOLLYWOOD INTERLUDE

Cast Of Characters

JUNE BLAIN, who won a beauty contest in Iowa and came to Hollywood.

BARBARA HOPE, famous cinema beauty.

BARNEY ALLEN, a Hollywood writer of national reputation.

JACK JARNEGAN, motion picture director.

JIMMY KENT, his assistant.

HARRY KENT, a middle aged motion picture actor.

He was tall and slender, with a strong, easy gait. A forlorn group waited in the outer room of The Golden Castle Inn. A man said tersely, "Nothing today, folks. It was almost noon when he had stopped.

"The group walked slowly toward the street and disappeared in the rain-sashed weather.

"I always like an exciting fellow," he preferred as he said. "Any fellow who had stopped to them men seated about a table.

"One asked them to be actors," said a man whose temper was not good.

"But it's a tough life just the same," the speaker was beyond forty, and strong as the oak chair in which he sat. "You've had to curse for a time, have you, Kent?"

The man with the gray temples looked at his partner. "Not exactly."

"I thought not," was the return. "Well, I have—"

"But you came through," the partner rubbed his gray temples.

"I'll say," ejaculated the young fellow who had slammed the window. "I costs a world—the highest price in the world."

He looked at the turbid water running down the window.

"That's what you think," said the interviewer, whose heavy shoulders, immense head, and soft blue eyes gave him a certain air of importance.

"There's no evidence for which he was famous."

"He glared about as if expecting contradiction, and retorted: 'They're all blind horses going over the same bridge—no one can see the page of glamor unless success is behind it.'

"Please don't want to read about failure?"

"I'm not," the man with gray temples said.

"Not until they know it," he retorted.

"Of course, Harry Kent wouldn't know that—you've been the knees of the world for him."

Kent stroked his gray temple. "Maybe you're right, Barney—but I've had my ups and downs."

"In an elevator?" Slight laughter followed.

"I made my way here," Kent said.

"Because women liked your looks—

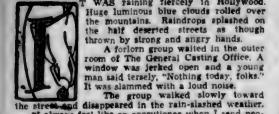

"You'd better be cross-eyed—then where would you be?"

As though the question were too direct, Kent said, "I'm not."

"Remember, Harry. I've seen them come and go here—men and women just as good looking as you—who could act—they're great actors—but they were called on account of darkness or rain—or something—the wrong breaks—that's all."

Kent's eyes arched with indifference.

It was raining fiercely in Hollywood. Huge luminous blue clouds rolled over the mountains. Raindrops splashed on the windows, which were broken by strong and angry hands.

A forlorn group waited in the outer room of The Golden Castle Inn. A man said tersely, "Nothing today, folks. It was almost noon when he had stopped."

June Blain Was Beautiful

"You remember June Blain?" the interviewer asked.

Kent nodded.

"She was a writer of national reputation."

"She was a writer of June Blain's and her cock-eyed cynicism got her into the world until he died—and many hours to the last oblivion."

Kent smiled. "Jarnegan's right, Barney—you talk like a writer."

"More exceptional than those he interviewed, Barney."

"Because women liked your looks—

But they were the blind she couldn't see.

"About this time she had three weeks work and sent half the money to her mother, and bought the house she had been saving for. And just like Hollywood she had to work for months."

"Then Jack Jarnegan gave her a test for the flower girl. She was beyond forty, and strong as the oak chair in which he sat. "You've got to curse for a time, have you, Kent?"

"The man with the gray temples looked at his partner. "Not exactly."

ENDORSTION COLLECTIVITY WINS DEBATE

Visiting University of British Columbia Debaters Defeat Albertans

Debate on the resolution that an Anglo-American alliance would be a better guarantee of world peace than the principle of collective security of the League of Nations. Brian Robertson and Morris Belkin of the University of British Columbia, supported by the negative, defeated their Alberta opponents, Morris Shulman and John Michael Horan, of the Canadian Legion, Friday evening, as part of the competition for the National Canadian Debating Council trophy.

The visitors based their contention on the fact that the world is in confusion and there is a need for intellectual orderliness, armed alliance being a means to an end as they maintain a superior force. Mr. Robertson believed that the League of Nations was the best guarantee of world peace by forcing defeated nations to accept terms. He has no objection to the League's camp those seeking to enforce it and those seeking to redress the treat.

DEBUT POSSIBILITY

Mr. Belkin felt that it was doubtful if an Anglo-American alliance could ever be attained, but the ambitions of the United States, Americans are the cause of the world's confusion and the argument was that all nations should co-operate for the common good.

The affirmative was of the opinion that, insofar as the United States and Great Britain control the world's supply of the four most important minerals in the world, being democratic nations with a desire to be powerful, their alliance could preserve world peace, in view of the fact that collective security had failed.

Mr. Shulman stated that the world was in a state of confusion, that the Great War was just a first battle, and the principle of collective security was the best. The recent policy of Japan and Italy as proof of his argument.

Mr. Shulman said the United States last year favored an Anglo-American alliance, because they were seeking along with France upheld democracy.

RIDUCIBLE LEAGUE

Mr. Epstein ridiculed the League as being a "ridiculous" body, how much better the League in the case of the Italy-Ethiopian crisis. The fact that assembly could easily be held in the central European nations could show that the League, on the part of the League, had not voted in favor of the aggressor, he said.

In his rebuttal, Mr. Schmidauer said that the League of Nations is a law in itself, and, on joining the League of Nations, each failed to give up his right to self-government, a power that might be superior, and effective in maintaining peace. In his opinion, the League failed to effect the one point that was necessary for the League's success.

Judges for the debate were J. M. Irvin, G. B. Connor, K.C., and Professor J. E. G. Smith, of the department of history of the University. The chairman was Dr. J. M. MacEachern, provost of the university.

Saskatchewan Wins

Affirmative Case

SASKATOON, Jan. 22—Saskatchewan University's debating team, consisting of three members of the faculty, defeated the University of Manitoba team last night in a debate on the resolution, "that an Anglo-American alliance offers a better hope for world peace than the principle of collective security of the League of Nations." The debate was supported by Vernon L. Turner, George Harbinson, and opposed by Ronald Turner and George Harris for Manitoba.

At 100 Still Works On Job 85 Years

JOHN MICHAEL HORAN.

A determined man, John Michael Horan of Milwaukee, looks ahead to his 100th birthday. One is tomorrow, Jan. 23, his 100th job he got 84 years ago and still holds.

Boiler inspector for the Milwaukee railroad in the Milwaukee shops, Horan has been at his desk and making the rounds of the yards and terminals to pursue his favorite hobby. That is tracing whether any man in the world has ever had a longer life than he has. So far Mr. Horan is happy to report he has found no such person.

Piling cordwood for the old-time wood-burning locomotives, Horan was a boy in 1894. He has not missed a single day's work since he became a boiler inspector in 1901. Regular work and regular work is Horan's prescription and he intends to stick to it.
